“ I met David fourteen years ago when I began my job running the paint department at Adler's Hardware in Providence. The historic east side was home to many of David's long time customers so he was a frequent patron of the store. Over the years and after many, many conversations that went far beyond paint, I developed a real fondness for this gracious and deeply curious man. Although I have never met Allison and only occasionally saw his sons, I felt as if I knew them - for his family life was a source of great pride and joy to him and was often mentioned in our ongoing and expansive chats. I must admit, I am reeling from this news, but I find a small comfort in knowing that David reveled in the life he built with Alison and the dogs and in being an avid participant in his sons' many adventures. I will deeply miss this man.

“ My sister, Allison, met Dave 11 years ago...Dave has been part our family since. I have never seen a man cherish a woman the way Dave did Allison. He always tried to make her happy and vice versa. The happiest day of Dave's life was the day they were married. They were meant for each other. We will miss him

All our love,
